Theme

SEVERAL hundred years before the Christian Era the original Olympic Games began at Olympia in Greece. Every four years a number of men engaged in strenuous training for a period of ten months, at the end of which time the games were run. A final winner was selected and crowned with a wreath of olive leaves as a token of his accomplishment.

In the games, there were three phases: training, goal, and finally the reward. The life of each individual today is a game and if conducted as such contains these phases. No matter what length of time is given there must always be a goal ahead. In order to reach this goal one is constantly in training whether in school or not. At various intervals, rewards are received according to one's part in the game. The most worthwhile rewards are those won fairly, those that do not perish easily, but those that are everlasting.

TO WILLIAM BRUNDERT

For friendship's sake let's remember one
Who came with us in all our fun,
When life was gay and always fair—
Those were the days so free of care.
Then none did know how fate would end
This earthly life of our young friend.

So now it is three years ago
That you, my friend, came here to grow,
Improving both in soul and mind,
Toiling were you, true fame to find.
But fate will be the same to all,
Surely there comes to man Death's call.

Oh, brother dear, why did you leave
Us there alone that fateful eve?
For when you left something was lost
Like fragrant roses killed by frost—
Though dead their form, one always sees
Faint traces of their memories.

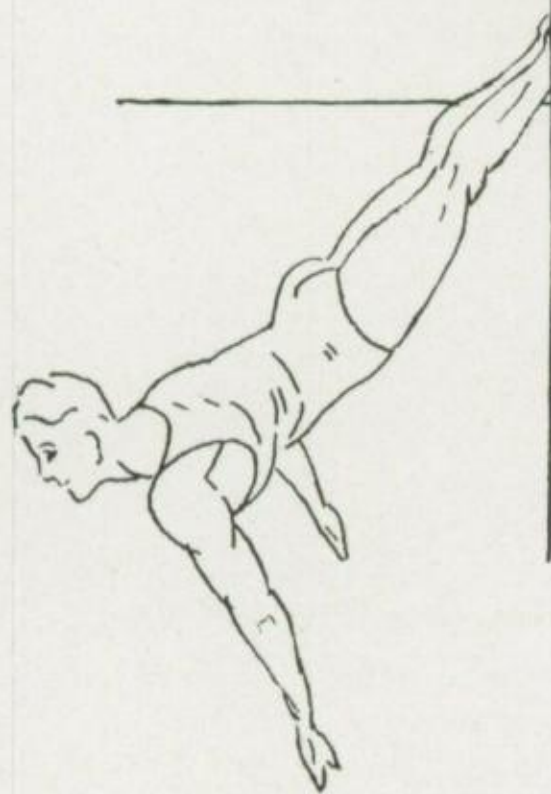

So gone now is your part to play,
Others must take your lines to say.
Many have seen that which you were,
And what you loved and did prefer.
But only God will e'er have known
The height to which you would have grown.

—JOHN McPECK.

THE GIRL RESERVES

“To find and give the best—
To face life squarely—”

This is the purpose of the Girl Reserve Club. Any girl in the Senior High School is eligible to membership in this club, the aim of which is three-fold—the development of Christian spirits; healthy bodies, and alert minds.

The weekly meetings are held in the Y. W. C. A. Two meetings a month are devoted to interest group work. Each girl may join any group in which she is interested; whether it be handicraft, orchestra, journalism, dramatics, tap-dancing, basketball or bowling. (New groups are organized each semester.)

The social side is developed by frequent parties. This semester included a Get-Together Party, a Boys' Night Dance, a Swimming Party, a Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet, and a Picnic.

The governing body of the club consists of a cabinet of 18 club girls and 5 adult advisors. This group plans the program of the year at their first cabinet meeting ordinarily held at Eastbrook Camp.

THE HI-Y CLUB

The purpose of the Hi-Y Club is to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian character.

Its activities are based on a four-fold program of life—mental, physical, spiritual, and social. All four of these have been touched upon this year.

The mental side of this program has been developed by having prominent business men of the town instruct the members on various subjects. The club sponsored the "Move Up Forward" campaign in the high school this semester.

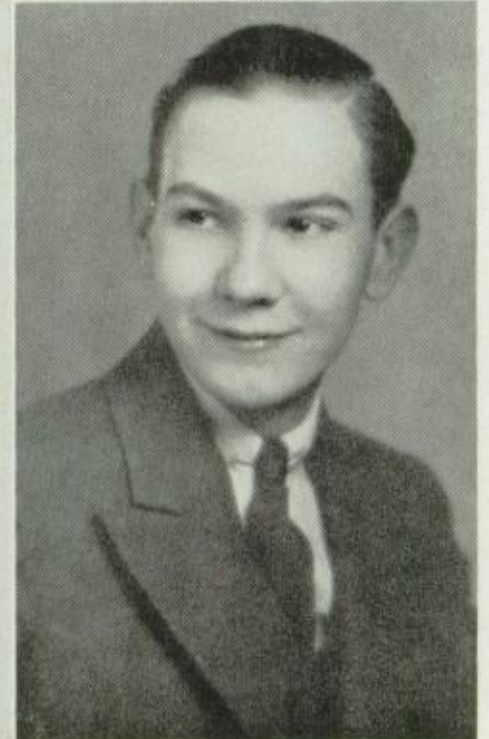

The physical side has been of especially great interest to the members. Swimming, wrestling and other sports have been enjoyed by the club members. In the past basketball season the team lost only two games.

The club has a gospel team. In the past year it has conducted several church services throughout the town. A part of the meeting is set aside every week for spiritual instruction.

The social side has not been neglected. The club has held many social functions. The annual spring picnic has been scheduled for June 6, and promises to be a great success.

SENIOR PLAY

On Thursday evening, May 12, 1932, at 8:15 o'clock, the Senior A Class presented their play, "Take My Advice." The play was a comedy in three acts and the cast consisted of eight of the graduating students:

Bud Weaver	- - - - -	Amil Lelenko
Ann Weaver	- - - - -	Peggy Prowitt
Jim Thayer	- - - - -	William Wheeler
Kerry VanKind	- - - - -	Jack Griffith
Joseph Weaver	- - - - -	James Sotus
Mrs. Weaver	- - - - -	Mary Louise Chip
Bradley Clement	- - - - -	Yale Kaplan
Marella Scotte	- - - - -	Frances Aiken

Bud Weaver portrayed by Amil Lelenko, in such a manner as to keep humor in the play at the most serious moment, returns home from prep school with ambitions of marrying Marella Scotte. Marella is taken by Frances Aiken. Miss Aiken plays her part in such a way as to grip the audience by her vampish actions. Ann Weaver is very much taken to Mr. VanKind, an ambitious ham actor attempting to secure students for a Dramatic School with which he is connected. Peggy Prowitt puts much life into the part of Ann, holding the audience in her adverse as well as her joyous moments. Jack Griffith acting as Mr. VanKind, puts his whole soul into a part taking great skill to portray. Mrs. Weaver has heard of Mr. Jim Thayer, a high pressure stock salesman. She desires that he should meet her husband, a man whose weakness is stocks. Mary Louise Chip plays the part of Mrs. Weaver, standing up for her children as a mother, and scolding her husband as a wife, in quite natural fashion. William Wheeler, acting as Jim Thayer, plays his part well. A high pressure salesman, William seems to be in his own. Mr. Weaver, a middle aged man, was portrayed by James Sotus. James acts as a father and husband under great strain through financial difficulties. Professor Clement, Bud's English instructor, who saves the day for the Weaver family, is portrayed by Yale Kaplan. Yale uses his coolness and presence of mind to a great advantage.

Jim Thayer calls at the Weaver home, but learning of Mrs. Weaver's absence, leaves, to call again. Mr. VanKind next comes in, using his dramatic abilities to great advantage in influencing Ann. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver come home at about the same time. With the knowledge of Bud's presence at home, everyone is in a happy mood, until Mr. Weaver discovers Jim Thayer's calling card. Mr. Weaver is now confronted with the problem of how to evade Jim Thayer.

Professor Clement comes to see why Bud has left school. He learns of the affairs of the entire family. With his keen presence of mind, Mr. Clement proceeds to prevent Bud's untimely marriage, to aid Mr. Weaver in evading Jim Thayer, and to bring to an end Mr. VanKind's influence over Ann. He discourages Bud in his love affair by making love to Marella and pretending to elope. Through some very foolish maneuvers, he proves that VanKind is not the man he was supposed to be. The stocks that Jim Thayer is trying to sell are proved to be worthless. It is also proved that Jim and Marella are married. Their racket is to have Marella make love to easy marks. She persuades them to get rich in oil stocks. Jim steps in, sells some stock, and disappears with Marella, leaving only a worthless piece of paper.

MOCK PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATING CONVENTION

INDEPENDENT NATIONALISTS

About ninety students in the Problems in Democracy classes, organized the Independent-Nationalist Party, for the purpose of holding a Mock Presidential Nominating Convention.

The students participating from each class were first organized as a National Committee, where plans were formed for conducting the Convention. An earnest effort was made to follow, as nearly as possible, the procedure of a regular Convention. Peggy Prowitt was made temporary, and later, permanent chairman; Ed Marvin was chosen Chairman of the Committee on Credentials; Melba Brickner, Chairman of Committee on Permanent Organization; Cosmo Scilla, Chairman of Committee on Rules; Max Rosen, Chairman of Committee on Platform and Resolutions.

The adoption of the platform created much interest as well as controversy. The candidates presented for president were Frederick Wilkes and Peggy Prowitt, with Joe Tantilla as a favorite son. As this article goes to press, the convention plans to vote at their next meeting, for the above candidates who have been presented to the convention. Much interest was manifested in the convention, and many of the students are planning to follow the coming Nominating Convention to be held in Chicago during June. They are also planning to read the platforms of both parties, to see how much like their own, or how different, the real platform will be.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Ne-Ca-Hi varsity basketball team fought their way to the quarter finals in the W. P. I. A. L. championship tournament, after overcoming a series of powerful opponents in this district.

New Castle won 13 out of their 16 games played.

Finis

Education has the power to overcome the greatest of life's obstacles. He who is well educated need not fear; for a man who is sufficiently educated is securely armed.

Thus armed, the graduating class of June, 1932, faces the world, and they bid Ne-Ca-Hi, their Alma Mater, a fond farewell.

HARRY L. C. HOOD.

THE SPIRIT OF OLD NE-CA-HI

Mid the glamor and thrills and the cheers of the crowd,
That comes with our football and track,
We must always remember, there's sportsmanship first,
A merit we never must lack.

To win is just fine; we all love it, I know,
And cheer our boys on to the end;
But honor is first, you all will agree,
I know we shall never unbend.

A game's soon forgotten with its victory or loss,
But an act of unsportsmanship never;
And whether we win or lose in the end,
Our honor we never shall sever.

As long as our banner floats in the sky,
And our teams take the field in their glory,
We must keep our proud standard of sportsmanship high,
For this we shall never be sorry.

—WILLIAM WHEELER.

CLASS OF THIRTY TWO

- C—stands for courtesy in which we have found
Glenn Kellogg and Harry Lockley surely abound.
- L—stands for loved ones, two of our best,
Helen Root and Russell Bowen we quickly suggest.
- A—stands for attractiveness always desired,
Alma Kivine and Edwin Lamb for this are admired.
- S—stands for scholarship, and we can decide
Bob Ailey and Perry Lee Reeher, the honors divide.
- S—stands for sportsmanship, and our best pair,
Eleanor Confer and Nick Uram, always play fair.
- O—stands for optimism, Ann Kelch and Bob McWilliams
Have smiled the year into oblivion.
- F—stands for fickle, fluttering, fanciful, one
Fred Wilkes and Jacob Thomas all solemnity shun.
- T—stands for talent, possessed by so few,
Peggy Prowitt and Dante DiThomas come through.
- H—stands for humor and we are bound to say
Amil Lelenko and Bud Long keep us laughing all day.
- I—stands for individuality and as far as we're concerned,
Charles Hogue and John Wilson honors have earned.
- R—stands for resourcefulness, and it is well known
That in this Max Rosen and Joe Tantillo aptness have shown.
- T—stands for teasers, we have quite a few—
Helen Spiker and Harry Crisci—and their line isn't new.
- Y—stands for youth, which beckons to us all,
With soaring spirits we all answer its call.
- T—stands for those typical of our school—
Margaret Leonhardt and Charlotte Whiting obey every rule.
- W—stands for winsome. Dorothy Shriver and Helen Cotton find it to be
As easy as anything—at least, as far as we can see.
- O—stands for ordering, senior's delight,
Yale Kaplan and Edward Marvin forever in sight.

THE FORGETFUL VISITOR

Faster and faster the wheels went around; nearer and nearer to his destination it carried him. It was a glorious—yes, an unforgettable week-end. Yet his mind rested uneasily. What was it that he had forgotten? He had carefully checked over the contents of his valise from his toothbrush to his smoking jacket. There was nothing missing here.

The reflection caused by the sun's rays on the golden wheat fields brought to his mind a picture. The charm and poise of the girls at the party was unusual, especially the hostess who was a tall, witty blond.

Yes,—of course, that was it! Now he knew what he had left behind. It was not difficult to compose the letter, but was it proper? can you judge—?

June 10, 1931.

MY DEAR MISS JYNNE:

If you will pardon the unconventionalism of this letter I will state my trouble. In checking over all my belongings I found that I had forgotten my heart. It will happen, you know. If you happen to find it by some lucky chance, please take care of it, if it will not trouble you. But, if it will be in your way, send it back. Please be careful the way you pack it, and please prevent it from breaking!

As ever,
JERRY MARCHE.

A more conventional reply could never have been received.

DEAR JERRY:

How forgetful men are! I have found no less than ten such objects left over from the last week-end. Some are crushed, some completely broken, while others are slightly cracked. But, among these there is one whole heart. Is it yours? I hope so!

Since I realize how very vital a heart is to all humans, I am sending mine to take the place of the lost one.

If you care to claim your heart, come out on the 12:45 train tomorrow.

Sincerely yours,
SANJA JYNNE.

Mother Instinct plays a large part in the destiny of men. Rolling over the tracks came the express train, but this time it was headed for the little town that had that certain little house with the gay veranda and its honeysuckle vine. Preceding the arrival of the train came a telegram saying:

DARLING:

Could not wait until tomorrow. Will arrive on 5:43 today.

Until then,
JERRY.

THE DISADVANTAGE OF PAYING YOUR BILLS PROMPTLY

The American people should be educated to "the disadvantages of paying their bills promptly." In fact, it has become socially, financially, and industrially imperative. What would become of the workmen in the Red Ink industry, the glass blowers who make the ink bottles, and the printer who prints the labels? It is easily seen how it goes around in the circle, how one depends upon the other.

Does not the inventor of these envelopes with windows in them deserve royalties upon his patent? We must not discourage inventing; our scientific progress depends upon that. The longer we delay in paying bills the more of these envelopes will be used, bringing the inventor huge rewards which will make fellow inventors envious and stir them to invention.

Socially speaking, bills bring about a traffic of communication which serves to knit tighter the brotherhood of man. It would be tragic to take any measures tending to interrupt this vital artery. A good community of citizens will become acquainted with each other. They should exchange ideas, and bills do much toward this end.

It is obvious that it takes bills to pay bills. Realizing that, it is easy to appreciate the fact that if everyone should start to pay his bills promptly, the checks would cause such a huge drainage on the banks that our whole banking system, our very financial foundation would become undermined; chaos, crisis would lie ahead of us; the dollar would follow the pound and the ounce. Is it not clear what a disadvantage it would be to pay bills promptly?

Anyhow, where is the logic in hurrying to pay your bills promptly when, if you will be but patient for a little while, the collector will come to your very door, saving bother on your part of traveling all over town. Of course, it would be only a matter of courtesy to give the collector a tip as a token of appreciation. I am a bill collector.

—LAWRENCE KAHRER.

Mr. Cassillo: "How many natural magnets are known?"

Ned Anderson: "Two, sir."

Mr. Casillo (surprised): "Yes; and will you please name them?"

Ned: "Blondes and brunettes."

Miss Birchard: "Where is the capital of the United States?"

Fred Wilkes: "Well, most of it is in Europe."

Grocer (after filling molasses jug): Here's your molasses, sonny. Where's your dime?"

Richard Canon: "I left it in the jug."

Miss Stevenson: "Me who laughs last, laughs best."

Dot Kennedy: "Yeah, but he soon gets a reputation for being dumb."

MOTORING

My Ma, she is a back-seat driver,
Pa don't like it though;
You ought to hear Pa
When Ma says, "Do go slow!"

My Pa, he likes to scare
The dickens out of Ma,
But then, when he gets home,
It's just too bad for Pa.

When Pa gets behind some big truck,
The racket in the back will start;
Then Ma will cry,
"Oh, Pa! remember my weak heart."

Isn't that a nice house over there
Where that stream is flowing?
Now Pa, please look!
Now watch where you're going!

"Now Pa, you're going too fast—
Slow down to ten," Ma will rave.
"Please do Pa, for if you don't We'll all be in our graves."

"Please do shut up,"
Pa will complain,
"If we have an accident
You'll be to blame."

"Here, take this wheel,
I'm tired of your remarks!"
Then everything goes fine
As we ride up to the Starks.

Jack Cole (to dad): "I passed Caesar today."
Mr. Cole (unconcerned): "Did he speak to you?"

Pathetic Figure: The sophomore who wants to know where the upperclassmen keep their ponies.

Miss Calvin: "John, have you done your outside reading?"
John Campbell: "No, Miss Calvin; it's too cold."

(In French Class). Bob McWilliams: "What are you laughing at, Dan?"

Dan Ryan: "I was just laughing at John."

Bob: "Why?"

Dan: "Because he doesn't know Miss Kelley left the room and he is still studying."

Melba Brickner: "You write like a paralytic."

John McPeck: "How's that?"

Melba: "Very bad strokes."

Jake Thomas: "I'm just a little love bird."

Evelyn Swanson: "That's funny. I was told you were a little coo-coo."

Miss Van Divort: "What new laws did Caesar make when he came to Rome?"

Bob Ailey: "Outlaws."

Perry Reeher: "Mama, when can I shave like Papa does?"

Mother: "Not for a long time."

Perry: "Why not? I know a lot of words already."

Harry Brown: "What does the buffalo on the nickles stand for?"

Mildred Hay: "Because there isn't room to sit down."

Miss Van Divort: "You people are just riding through your Latin and you aren't getting a thing out of it."

Alex Brincko: "Don't you accuse me of having a pony."

Mr. Weide: "What is the unit of electricity?"

Glenn Kellogg: "What?"

Mr. Weide: "That's right."

Jack Griffith: "What makes her talk so much?"

Howard Gresham: "I don't know, she must have been vaccinated with a victrola needle."

Miss Elliott: "Are you sure this is your father's signature?"

Bill Houck: "As near as I could get it."

Mr. Weide: "All a woman thinks of is clothes."

Mr. Nelson: "Yes, no sooner she gets her wedding gown off, she begins to plan her divorce suit."

Miss Galbraith: "Ralph, what is the worst nation in the world?"

Ralph Boyd: "Exami-nation."

Miss Johnston asked Willy Ciccone to put his mind on a poem and the result was blank verse.

The reason Miss Galbraith was looking so sad the other day is that Ralph Boyd insisted that a sonnet really is a very small baby boy.

Bud Bowen: "Give me 'The Life of Caesar'."

Miss Westlake: "I'm sorry, but you are too late; Brutus beat you to it."

- 18—What would you call a person who pretends to know everything?
Ans. Why a teacher, of course.
- 19—Will a car that can go seventy miles an hour last?
Ans. It doesn't matter because the driver won't need it long anyway.
- 20—If one takes a potato and divides into two parts; then into four parts and each of four parts into two parts, what would he have?
Ans. Potato salad.

Miss Johnston: "What does L'Allegro and Il Penseroso represent?"

Frank McClain: "Happy Hooligan and Gloomy Gus."

Teachers here at Ne-Ca-Hi are like a thermometer—graduated and marked by degrees.

Miss Edmunds: "What makes you write so small?"

Bob McWilliams: "The depression's on."

Mr. Nelson: "Name a poisonous substance."

John Whiteman: "Aviation."

Mr. Nelson: "Why, I don't understand."

John: "One drop will kill."

Garageman: "Your car's at the door."

Mary Capitola: "Yes, I hear it knocking."

Bill Houck: "How long could I live without brains?"

Miss Elliott: "Time will tell."

Miss Van Divort: "Helen, you read too literal. Try to read between the lines."

Helen Gilliland: "Well, I can't very handy. It's partly erased."

Reverend Bennett (at Commencement exercises): "Now, Seniors, you are about to embark on the sea of life."

Isabelle Shaw: "Good-night and I can't swim."

Miss Birchard: "Can you tell me when the revival of learning began?"

Ruth Whitlatch: "Yes, a few nights before the final exams."

William Bender: "I've got an idea in my head."

Miss Calvin: "Aha! a stowaway!"

Max Rosen: "People will gaze at my picture with open mouths."

Agnes Schweikert: "Yes, I suppose it would be pretty hard to yawn with your mouth closed."

Mr. Bridenbaugh: "Golf is pie for me."

Mr. Gardner: "It must be. I see you just took another slice."

Glenn Kellogg: "Let's get some girls and go out to dinner."

Perry Reeher: "All right. Who do you know that's on a diet?"
